Ardenode Showers

Mrs. Ted Joel

by H. S.

Mrs. D. S. Brook was hostess at a very delightful Towel Shower last Thursday afternoon given in honor of Mrs. E. Joel formerly Elaine Sarsons, whose marriage took place a few days ago in Banff. About twenty three guests were present to offer congratulations to "Elaine".

The bride's chair was tastefully decorated in pink and white. The large basket which was filled to overflowing with very useful gifts was beautifully made in the same colors. Elaine was presented with six silver spoons from the W.I. A delicious lunch was served after which a Bride's book was made, much to the enjoyment of all present. Bingo was played, and the afternoon came to a close. Elaine very graciously thanked all her many friends for all their kindness and good wishes, and hopes to meet them all in her new home in Calgary at some future date.

Gala "Aquacade" For Sunday Afternoon

To end the season's activities at the swimming pool, a huge swimming display has been planned for Sunday afternoon, with demonstrations of all kinds of swimming to interest onlookers and show what has been accomplished through the season. Races will be held for boys under fifteen, girls under fifteen, and boys and girls over fifteen.

In conjunction with the swimming pool committee of the Community Council, Ray Rajala, pool supervisor has arranged a program designed to keep interest moving at all times, and to show parents and others interested many phases of the water program.

Eddie Vermont and Miss Joan Brook, all of Calgary, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Brook Thursday last.

Mrs. Cliff Dawson, Mrs. Fred Hill, Mrs. Charlie Coles and Mrs. D. S. Brook were guests at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Mrs. Oscar Orr, formerly Edith Dawson, at the home of Mrs. V. J. H. Huckle of Calgary Friday last.

Elect H. Woldum To Head Lions

New president of the Strathmore Lions Club for this year is Mr. H. Woldum, who was elected at the meeting last Thursday. Mr. Woldum succeeds to the chair following the resignation of Mr. George Anderson on his leaving for Hanna. Mr. Woldum, formerly third vice-president, was replaced in this office by Mr. Charles Coles.

An excellent dinner was served by Len Roberts, Jack Bennett and Ray Wilkinson. Caterers for the next month will be S. Colwell, Rev. A. A. Hamilton, and C. A. MacLean. Mr. Wm. Titson-Bennett, of the Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety committee was present, and started a discussion on the swimming pool, which lasted for some time. He announced that he had examined swimming students and had passed eleven entrants that day. In the absence of past president George Anderson, Charles Scott himself a past president by only a couple of months, pinned the president's pin on Mr. Woldum. Mr. Woldum thanked him warmly, thanked the club for their support, and promised his full interest in the work ahead.

Winner of the Scott Pot for the evening was Mr. Ken Koebel.

Enid Baldwin Places Third In Novelty Jump at Horseshow

Langdon Girls Club Under Convenorship Of Mrs. Ed Barlow

by G. E. W.

Hold Organization Meeting On Monday.

Mrs. G. Buntin and Mrs. Pearl Peterson were convenors of the Women's Institute held on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The afternoon passed quickly with the usual business matters. A "True Quiz" conducted by Mrs. Colwell, kept the ladies thinking for a few minutes, the prize being won by Mrs. A. Warrack. The roll call a "humorous story" was well named and well answered.

Fourteen members were present at the H. & S. held on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Ed. Barlow is taking over as convenor of the Girls Club. A meeting will be held on Monday evening Aug. 30th in the W. I. Hall to elect a new president.

Mrs. Frank Taylor is resting comfortably after her recent serious operation. We hope she continue to improve, and that she may be home soon with her family.

The combines and tractors are humming these days, taking advantage of the few nice days of harvest weather.

Syd Smart is home from hospital. Work is still going ahead on the school. He is still lots to do before the 1st.

Johnnie Barron is at present in Toronto where he is visiting for a while before starting to work.

Carseland Girl Killed When Jeep Overturns

Country Pals Hold Successful Dance

Friday evening the W.I. girls club the Nightingale Country Pals, put on a lively musical program followed by a dance. The girls in their formal gowns displayed much talent and everyone enjoyed the program. We hope they do it again very soon. Bremer's orchestra supplied the music for dancing. The girls very much appreciate the fine patronage they received. These girls have been organized a year and, in spite of unfavorable weather during the winter and several being away at school, are doing well. They are now nine members. Misses Jean and Louise Mansfield, who recently came out from England, joined the group and added their bit to the program.

The new teacher for the junior room, Mrs. Cobbett with her husband and young daughter, have moved into the larger tenement. They came here from Lancashire, England.

Holiday Ends Fatally For Lorraine Kreuger

Lorraine Kreuger of Carseland was killed on Sunday afternoon when the jeep in which she and Joanne Lasher were riding, turned over on the Edmonton highway a mile south of Ochs. Miss Lasher suffered a severe shaking up, and was taken to hospital in Calgary.

The girls were returning from a holiday at Sylvan Lake, with Mr. and Mrs. N. V. Lasher of Mossburn following about two miles behind. Miss Lasher was driving the jeep, which left the road, struck a culvert and turned over.

Funeral services for Miss Kreuger, who was 19, were conducted on Thursday afternoon from the Park Memorial Chapel, Calgary, with Rev. Gordon Lapp officiating.

Twelve Swim Pupils Pass Test at Pool

Twelve swimming pupils passed tests here last Thursday, when Mr. Wm. Titson-Bennett, of the Red Cross Swimming and Water Safety program, put the youngsters through their paces. Only two of the swim students who entered failed to make the grade.

Miss Enid Baldwin passed her Senior Swimmer test, Miss Verna Mae Gannon, Miss Deven Isard and Don Milligan all passed intermediate tests, and Junior tests were passed by Evelyn Bennett, Verna Bennett, Kay Bennett, Norma Jean Anderson, Donna Anderson, Jeanne Gannon, Hilda Ekes and Art Luge.

The students have been taking instruction from Mr. Ray Rajala, pool supervisor for about a month now, with special exercises and instruction techniques. Many more students commenced the classes, but dropped out for one reason or another, mainly the break occasioned when moving off on holidays.

Wedding

JOEL—SARSONS

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Banff on Saturday August 14th, when Elaine second daughter of Mr. Phil Sarsons and the late Mrs. Sarsons of Ardenode became the bride of Mr. Edward (Ted) Joel second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Joel of Nightingale. Rev. Montgomery of the Anglican Church officiated. The bride looked lovely in a light blue street dress with hat to match.

Mrs. Eddie Vermont was matron of honor while Mr. Edward (Ted) Joel second son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Joel and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kimmert drove to Banff to attend the wedding.

Red Cross Thanks Supporters in Drive

At long last the convenor of the Red Cross drive for 1948 sends in a statement. The monies collected amounted to $1296.92 of which $26.00 of the proceeds earmarked for the "Junior" Crippled Children's Hospital in Calgary. Owing to the severe winter and late spring the 'drive' carried on over a very long period. All honour and hearty thanks to the collectors who often times put themselves to much inconvenience, and warmest thanks to the people of Strathmore and vicinity who responded so generously. It is not always wise to mention names for circumstances differ, but in this instance all hats off to Mrs. Osborne of Ardenode who despite the snow drifts mounted her horse and reached every home in her district! Please note that in the awful flood disasters this spring, Red Cross workers were constantly on duty. Therefore good citizens, it is as if we ourselves were on the scene of action, for it is our money which in part is helping to alleviate the sufferers.

TURN OUT FOR THE SWIM GALA

Marking the end of the swimming season, there will be a huge swimming competition and display in the pool on Sunday afternoon. We hope that everyone will turn out to see this. Not only will they learn what has been happening during the past couple of months, while the pool has been open, but they can also see the possibilities inherent in the pool.

Much has been said during the season about both the drawbacks and the advantages of the pool, so we feel that Sunday's display will have the answers to most claims on both sides.

From where we stand, on the outside, we cannot help but feel that the pool has proved to be the most useful adjunct in town for summer-time recreation. It caters to more individuals, we think, than any other function does. And yet, like most swimming pools, the committee finds that it is not paying its way. So they will be delighted when you stop at the little box for donations at the gate when you drop around Sunday afternoon.

NAME THE GAME

We know a lot of interesting names for card games, (Seven Toed Pete, Spit in the Ocean, and so on), but we can think of none which would adequately cover the current game being played between Russia and the Western Powers.

It's hard to make sense when their two latest moves are compared: withdrawing consular representation with the United States on the one hand, and on the other hand, encouraging development of a Four Power group in the German area.

At first glance the latter move would seem to be cause for optimism, but few informed observers in the European section feel inclined towards optimism. As one summed it up: "The situation is less hopeless rather than more hopeful."

On this side, removal of consulates from America has been feared by many as the possible prelude to further break-aways. Sufficient breaks of this nature, it is felt, would only pave the way for a war. On the other hand, were the Russians planning war in the near future, it is likely they would maintain their contacts as long as possible, for the information they might be able to gain. Russia is an astute opponent and is not likely to blind itself in such manner.

HAVING THE ANSWER

A few nights ago on the radio, there was a rebroadcast of a speech made by Don Mackay of Calgary at the Liberal Convention in Ottawa, dealing with the matter of a Canadian flag. Mr. Mackay said that he had been on a visit to the States and they were hanging flags of the countries represented at the gathering, and asked what to hang for his country, and as Mr. Mackay told the Ottawa gathering, he did not know what to say.

Now, while we are simply astounded that an intelligent man like Mr. Mackay (well, we thought so) would not be sure of his ground, it does well illustrate the fact that Canadian's, as a group, are ignorant of their own country. And if a more or less prominent man such as Mr. Mackay does not know, how much less must many other sections of our populace know.

We have felt for years that more of the flag waving, more of the band playing, more of the formal, even calculated, type of patriotism would be better in the observance than in the breach in this country where many of us seem to feel that pride in our country is a matter for shame.

We don't feel that way?

How many of us can stand to attention when "O Canada" is played without feeling self conscious? How many can sing through "The King" without looking all around the room, or at their neighbors, or twitching their clothing? How many men remove their hats when the national anthem is played? How many, for that matter know which of the songs above is the national anthem?

So we feel again, that if the Union Jack were waved a little more often. Mr. Mackay, and many others, might eventually learn which flag should be hung for Canada.

TEACHER TROUBLES

During the quarter-century before 1928, this province used on an average of 862 new teachers every year. Present indications are that we shall be lucky to find half that number in the years ahead. It appears that we shall have to study how first to induce more of our high school graduates to enter the Teacher Colleges, and how second to persuade them to stay on the job. Changed conditions require a re-thinking of this basic social problem.

In Others' Words

Glare of Headlights

The glare of headlights is the chief cause of the increasing number of night-driving accidents, according to a report just issued by the California State Automobile Association. The American Automobile Association recently announced that existing conditions with respect to automobile headlights is a "most serious factor working against safety, courtesy and the law." It is found that a third of the night drivers forget, or refuse, to dim their headlights for approaching cars.

Other findings of the survey show that Automobile headlighting, long inadequate, has not at all kept pace in safety and efficiency with other automotive improvements; many drivers are reluctant to dim their lights and a substantial percentage of autos have poorly focused lights or operate with but one light because the drivers are, in most cases, too lazy to make prompt repairs.

The dimming of headlights is in no sense a cure-all. Even drivers with normal sight complain that the sudden dimming of their lights temporarily shuts off their vision along the lane ahead and they are worried about running into the rear of unlighted parked cars or hitting pedestrians that may be in the path of their cars.

It is not difficult to construct headlights that will light up the road for a half-mile, or more ahead. But it is a fact that headlighting has not kept pace with other automotive advances. There is need for concentration of engineering attention on auto lights that will prove more efficient than those now in use. Journal of Commerce.

Australian Banking

Many of our readers interested in the subject of finance were no doubt interested in the decision of the Australian courts with regard to the nationalization of the Australian banks. The legislation was last week ruled unconstitutional by the courts, which pointed out that among other things, it was contrary to the section of the constitution requiring that trade between the states shall be absolutely free.

In commenting on the judgement, Mr. Robert Scott, president of the Canadian Bankers' Associations, said: "While the constitutional relationship in regard to banking in Australia is not in all forms with Canada, no doubt the essential principle on which judgement was based is common to both countries. This is the government ownership of commercial banking jeopardizes its present impartiality and potentially interferes with freedom of commerce. That principle applies equally to Canada. Once bank credit accommodation is made subject to steering or distinction based on race, class or political party in power, or even opened to that possibility, freedom of commerce or of any fair bargain with him. It is a fact that the availability of bank credit does not now depend even to the slightest degree on political creed or social doctrine. It never should."

People Are People Everywhere

A local wisecrack got in the editorial staff last week when he said, ancient the proposed entry of Newfoundland into confederation. "What do we want with another province? Just one more different kind of people to deal with. As if we didn't have Quebec and a bunch of Percherons to give us trouble now."

Just how are Newfoundlanders different from Albertans, except that they probably eat more fish? How is a French Canadian lawyer different from a Saskatchewan lawyer except that he can read and write in two languages instead of one? How does a Nova Scotia apple grower differ from an apple grower in the Okanagan? They doubtless agree on the subject of freight rates wholeheartedly.

Newfoundlanders and Quebecers both squawk just as much about taxes as Westerners do; they kick about their roads and harbours just like a British Columbia taxpayer does; they row about provincial rights as do Albertans do; they weep over a death in the family in the same way as a Toronto broker, or a Peace River settler, or a Noranda mine boss do. They cheer a Highland regiment as vigorously as a Calgary movie audience or Nova Scotia on-lookers at a parade. They brag about how much money they lost at the races and try to deduct their losses from their income taxes. They also pitchforks and a neighbor with his spring work when he breaks his leg and in the fall drive a sharp bargain with him.

People are people and pretty much the same wherever you go but what makes them seem different is the amount of suspicion, distrust and bitterness you bring into your view of them and they bring to their view of you. And in that respect, people are the same everywhere.

More Power To Girls Like This One

Dear Bill:

I don't think I care to go out with you again.

Most of last evening was wonderful. But the drive home spoiled everything.

You behaved so nicely and acted so considerably up to till the minute you got your hands on the wheel and we were headed home. Then you suddenly were transformed into what seemed to me a bad-mannered and irresponsible gorilla.

You yelled at people who had just as much right on the road as you. You disregarded white lines and signs put there for your safety. You scared my wits out by going at an absurd speed.

That might have been considered smart once upon a time, but I assure you it's silly and childish today. Call me stuffy and prudish if you like. But I don't relish dying quite yet.

Nor do I want to get in one of those accidents where I am just hurt. I have sense enough to realize that you and the rest of the boys wouldn't be ringing my phone if my face were ineptly rearranged by a smash-up in your automobile.

So I don't think I'll go out with you again, Bill. At least not until you've grown up enough to behave decently as a driver, and not until you realize that you owe a certain responsibility to the person you ask to share your car with you.

AFTER-HARVEST CULTIVATION

When is the best time to fall cultivate? Records at the Lethbridge Experimental Station indicate that something is to be gained by blading stubble immediately after harvest or even right behind the combine at harvest time.

The advantages? Weeds, particularly Russian thistle, acetone seed and various pigweeds, which would otherwise grow rapidly once the crop had been taken off, are killed whilst they are still small. This destruction of weed growth leads directly to conservation of moisture. The following year, providing there is sufficient moisture in the soil to warrant seeding a crop on stubble, the absence of large dried-out weeds will make preparation and seeding much easier.

Late fall blading is less beneficial after harvest as weeds may have seeded and moisture been lost. However, even late blading results in control of the winter annual weeds such as shepherd's purse and stinkweed which normally live through the winter and resume growing in the spring.

Use of the blade implement after harvest leaves the stubble erect and so furnishes greater protection against wind and water erosion than the one-way and disc which break down the stubble. Blading also increases germination of weed seeds and, as the blade soil is loose in the spring, the first spring cultivation may be done with a rod weeder.

FARM FIELD DAYS

One result of the field days was to bring out the information that many farmers have not yet realized the need for timing in applying 2,4-D. Some of them remarked that the claims made for the effectiveness of the chemical seemed exaggerated. It was explained in reply that death of weeds from 2,4-D is a result of speeding up growth so that if the plants are not growing rapidly at the time of application the killing effect of the chemical is reduced. Timing is very important. During dry weather, for instance, when growing is at a standstill, there is not much point in spraying or dusting. The weeds may be set back a little but they will not be killed.

SOME CAUSES OF FAILURE WITH 2,4-D

Though the new herbicide, 2,4-D, is a remarkable weed killer, it is not perfect. The results from the earliest experiments led to the belief that all plants of the grass family, including wheat, oats, barley and rye were immune to injury from 2,4-D applications, but later experiments have shown this belief to be wrong, says A. C. Carder, Dominion Experimental Station, Beaverlodge, Alta. Plants of the grass family are susceptible to injury from 2,4-D if it is applied in too large amounts. When using 2,4-D to kill weeds in grain, no more should be used than is necessary to kill the species of weed to be removed. In this way the minimum of injury will be caused to the grain.

Time of applying 2,4-D is very important. Weeds are most easily killed by this chemical when they are young, succulent, and growing rapidly. It makes little impression on mature plants.

The weather is an important factor when applying 2,4-D. A strong wind may cause drifting of the spray or dust, causing uneven distribution and imperfect kill of weeds. Rain soon after application may wash off some of the slower acting brands of 2,4-D such as sodium salts. With the quicker acting amine and ester brands there is less danger of failure from this cause.

Tommy Wright tells the story of years ago when Freddie Dunn bought a horse from a local farmer. As soon as Freddie got the horse into his stable the nag keeled over and died. When the farmer heard about it, he left the country. Returning two years later, he ran into Fred and said, "I'm awfully sorry about selling you that horse and him dying on you as soon as you got him into the stable."

"Don't let that worry you," laughed Fred. "That horse made me five thousand dollars. As soon as I seen he was expired, I kept it quiet and started selling raffle tickets on the horse, a dollar a ticket, and I got five thousand customers."

The farmer was puzzled. "How about the fellow who won the horse?"

"Oh, him," chuckled Fred. "Well, he did raise a little fuss about it, so I gave him his dollar back."

Verna Mae Gannon's woeful comment after the horse-show: "No matter what the horse does, I can't."

Bert Wyman: "Darned if I understand banking."

Ted Parthing: "How so?"

Bert: "They'll lend you all the money you want as long as you can prove you don't need it."

Air Force Friend: "I'm sure glad to see you again, Bob. You don't look a day older. And is your wife as pretty as she used to be?"
Bob Milligan: "Yes, but it takes her longer to get that way nowadays."

Noticing that fully-fashioned stockings were on sale one day when he was in the city recently, Keith Baldwin decided to get his wife a pair, but he soon found himself buffeted about by frantic women. He stood it as long as he could, then with head lowered, and arms outstretched, he barged through the crowd.

"You there," yelled a shrill voice, "Can't you act like a gentleman?"

"I've been acting like a gentleman for an hour," replied Keith, still charging forward, "but from now on I'm going to act like a lady."

Nightingale

by Mrs. F. H.

Quite a number of local friends of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Logan journeyed to Baintree last Wednesday to attend a dance and party held in honor of the newlyweds. Mr. and Dawgonnit, says Ronnie Hinchcliffe, so far as practical jokes are concerned, practical jokers are just booby traps converted to civilian life.

Teacher: "Does your father pray, Wayne?"

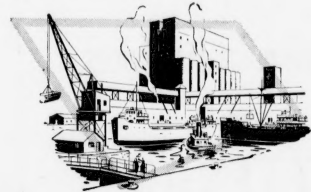

Wayne Bisdon: "Yes Teacher. When we sat down to supper last night, the first thing he said was, 'Good Lord! We've got beans again!'"

While Charlie Bremner and Norman Nielsen were off in Yellowstone, they went fishing one day. After quite a while, Norman said: "Had any luck?" "No," was Charlie's reply, "I can't get the cork out."

Mrs. Leonard Edgar and Mr. Lee Kinney supplied the music for dancing. During the supper hour Mr. Leonard Edgar on behalf of Baintree and Mr. Fred Hilton on behalf of Nightingale presented Mr. and Mrs. Logan with a lovely chest of silver along with other gifts. Howard and Emily each expressed their thanks. Dancing lasted to an early hour and all departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Logan every happiness.

The Women's Institute held their regular meeting at the hall last Friday. Roll Call was to guess song title which each member represented. Two food parcels were sent to England this week. Members are asked to remember the roll call for September 13 meeting at the hall is a bazaar suggestion and to bring any article they may have ready for the annual bazaar. Miss Audrey Walls was hostess for the day, and assisted by Misses Loraine and Arlene Hendricks served a lovely lunch to nine members and one visitor.

The Best banking system

CANADA has a banking system which, for efficiency and dependability, is unsurpassed in the world. Competitive, flexible, adaptable to the changing needs of the country, it serves Canada's producers, her industries, her traders—and it serves your personal needs, too.

No customer has to fear for the privacy of his regular banking transactions. This privacy is completely free of political pressures or considerations—it is rooted in Canadian banking practice and tradition.

Contrast this Canadian way with conditions in lands where freedom is denied—where every bank is a political tool, every banker a State official! State monopoly of banking, proposed by Socialists here, would fasten the Marxist foreign pattern on you.

C. P. A. To Fly Pacific

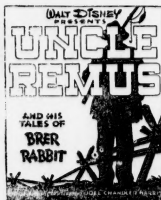

Canadian Pacific Air Lines has been granted permission for regular passenger and cargo flights on the two trans-Pacific routes shown in the above map, adding a total of 14,429 route miles to Canada's international air services. Now on order for the routes are pressurized four-engineered Canadair planes, with a capacity of 40 passengers and three tons of cargo, mail or express. They will be manned by experienced trans-ocean C. P. A. pilots.

Canadian Pacific inaugurated war-time transatlantic bomber delivery flights in 1940 and many of its pilots later flew four years with the Ferry Command and have since returned to the company. Operational and servicing headquarters will be at Vancouver; with the C. P. A.'s domestic overhaul work, now being carried out there, being transferred to Edmonton. Canadian Pacific, experienced in trans-Pacific travel since 1936, already has an extensive traffic organization in the countries the new flights will serve, which places it in a position to start operations with a minimum of delay and with no wasteful expenditure of Canadian dollars abroad. Regular flights will probably start by next Summer; it is felt that an early start is essential if the Dominion's position in the field of Oriental trade, as well as international air transport, is to be developed and maintained. From Vancouver to Sydney, by way of Honolulu, Canton Island and Fiji is 7,865 miles, and the Great Circle route Vancouver - Kodiak - Shemya Island - Tokyo - Shanghai - Hong Kong is 6,555 miles. New Zealand will be served with a branch service joining the through Vancouver-Sydney route at Fiji.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Do you feel that being prompt requires too much effort? If so, you are overlooking the fact that promptness pays worthwhile dividends in terms of success and popularity.

All the people with whom you may have relationships in your job — co-workers, customers, employer — will think you are more efficient and dependable if you keep appointments on time. And their good opinion of you can help you get ahead.

Even in off-work hours, promptness can build happy relationships with family and friends. For when you are on time it shows that you are considerate of other people and that you value their time.

How can you become prompt? It's easy! All you have to do is to say to yourself: From now on I'm going to be on time all the time with everybody!

Why not resolve today that you will see how much good will you can build in this simple way?

Life Insurance Companies are justly proud of their record in making prompt payments to beneficiaries and policyholders. It may surprise you to know that such payments in Canada approximate a half million dollars every day.

by D. V. V.

The annual district field day was held at the A. McKinnon farm. A large number of people out of Calgary besides the home community were present. Miss N. Hogg of the Home Economics Department gave a very interesting talk on different kinds of materials and showed samples. Mr. Hargrave of Brooks then gave a short talk concerning fruit trees and shelter belts most adapted to this climate.

This was particularly interesting as he gave names of fruit trees which could be planted in this area.

Short out-door talks for the men concerning the different varieties of grains which were adapted to this district were given by several speakers.

The afternoon came to a close with a delightful lawn supper.

Misses Shirley and Audrey Kants gave a party Thursday afternoon for their school mates. Every one of the young guests enjoyed the lunch and afternoon.

Menace of Water Erosion

Water erosion in the prairie region of Western Canada and the Peace River district is occurring at an accelerated rate. Although this form of land ruin has been going on for many years, the last ten have seen it leap forward until it is now the foremost problem facing some individual farmers, says J. S. Parker, Dominion Experimental Station at Swift Current, Saskatchewan.

This erosion is the result of runoff water flowing down sloping fields and carrying soil particles with it. When the flow of water becomes concentrated, gullies usually result. It is the presence of these gullies which make farmers aware of the existence of the problem, but by the time this happens much good top soil has been washed away. Gullies are primarily noticed because they present a hazard to farming operations and may even divide a farm into two or three distinct fields.

Gullies usually develop where there are long slopes or where a watershed forces water down a central channel. The run-off water may be the result of either melted snow or a heavy rainfall. Extremely intense rains create the most damage as the surface soil is quickly sealed and the moisture cannot penetrate downwards so it flows over the surface.

Instances of water erosion have been noted in Southwestern Saskatchewan where the damage resulting has been absolutely devastating. Sloping fields have been cut up, and in one case so much soil lost from the slopes, that in the flat land below silt has been deposited until two additional fences, one on top of the other, have been constructed over the original fence to keep up with the deposit.

In both the Northeastern and Southwestern portions of Saskatchewan several farms have been cut up by gullies and this is continuing. Areas of the foothills in Alberta are much the same. In the Peace River area, on the sloping fields, it is also occurring. One gully, 10 feet deep, 20 feet wide at its top and one-half mile long is the result of one afternoon's heavy rain. With another field, soil specialists estimate 25 per cent of the top soil to have been washed away.

Control of water erosion is not always easy. Much can be done through correct Land Use and employing proper cropping and tillage practices. Trash cover is an effective weapon to combat water erosion as it not only protects the surface but increases the absorptive capacity of the soil. Where water collects in small streams going down a slope, the best method of control is to remove that water in an orderly fashion so damage does not result. In most cases, this can best be done through construction of grassed waterways.

What To Do For PAINTING

PAINTING is a condition due to sudden failure of the action of the heart, which may be caused by hemorrhage; or by fatigue, want of food, or a close or crowded room; or by fright, dread, sudden bad news, or by the sudden relief from fear or anxiety after prolonged suspense.

The signs are: The patient turns giddy and falls; the face is pale; the pulse is rapid and weak, or almost imperceptible; the breathing is quick, sighing and irregular, and the skin becomes cold and clammy.

TREATMENT:—

1. Undo all clothing about the neck, chest and waist.
2. Ensure an abundance of fresh air; open windows and doors; keep back a crowd; remove from harmful gases or impure atmosphere.
3. Sprinkle the face with hot and cold water alternately, and apply warmth to the pit of the stomach and over the heart; vigorous friction of the limbs upwards has a stimulating effect. Smelling salts may be held to the nose.
4. If bleeding has been the cause of the condition guard against its recurrence. The wound will not bleed to any marked extent while the action of the heart is feeble. The wound must be carefully watched to be sure that bleeding does not recur when the patient begins to regain consciousness and the heart's action improves; or, if there is no wound look for signs of hemorrhage from an internal organ.
5. If want of nourishment has been the cause of the condition give food sparingly at first.
6. Give no food or fluids whatever by the mouth while the patient is insensible.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Takeda and family of Rosemary, stopped in town over Saturday to visit their daughter Fusako, on their way home from Edmonton.

Miss Olga Fedewich and Mr. Alec Fedewich are leaving on Tuesday for a holiday at Edmonton and Vegreville. They will travel by T. C. A. from Calgary.

Cameron Milligan arrived home again over the week-end, after spending a couple of weeks visiting in Lethbridge.

Mr. Stan Wright is suffering from inflammation of the throat, and is necessarily tied to the house for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Roberts and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Isard and Doreen, and Doris Harwood, went on a fishing trip to Carseland on Sunday, and Mrs. Roberts and Miss Harwood, two beginners, succeeded in landing the only catch of the day. They hooked a three and a half pound trout, running sixteen inches long, with only a bamboo pole, some line and a hook with a maggot on the end. Jack Isard reports that there were hundreds of the fish lying about in the pools, but they wouldn't look at any other hooks.

Mrs. Gladys Crellin returned Monday to Strathmore, after a couple of weeks holiday, with her two small sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Desmet entertained a large number of relatives and friends on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Alice Polley was a Saturday visitor at Banff, attending the production of the drama class, of which Mr. Bill Gronberg is a member.

Beverly Polley entertained a number of small friends on Monday afternoon, marking the occasion of her birthday.

Miss Betty Henderson observed her fourteenth birthday last Wednesday, and celebrated by inviting a group of friends in for a party on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Collison and their two daughters, of Victoria, B. C., were in Strathmore over Wednesday and Thursday, visiting many old-time friends. Eddie, who was formerly employed with Hughes Motors, and who played hockey here for many years, left about eight years ago for the Coast city. He reports that Strathmore has changed so much in eight years he doesn't know half the people he meets.

Mr. David Quirin is planning to leave for Winnipeg shortly, where he will commence University, taking Arts and Law. He was unable to obtain accommodation at Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Niven and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Niven, all of Calgary, were Sunday guests of Mrs. T. B. Hughes and Miss Gladys Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hamby, who left last week for a trip through the mountains, have covered Radium and Windermere, according to reports early this week, and are expected home during the middle of the week, travelling via Jasper.

Mrs. F. Pierrard of Gleichen, who has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Gervais in Strathmore for the past couple of weeks, is planning to return home by this week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Vermut have been visiting in Strathmore for about a week, returning to Calgary on Thursday, while Eddie is on holidays.

"It's Pool Elevators This Year"

The Alberta Wheat Pool is celebrating its 25th anniversary. The rallying cry is "Make this year a Pool Elevator Year."

Many of the men who participated in the formation of the Alberta Wheat Pool are no longer engaged in farming. The younger generation of farmers may not be so keenly aware of the pressure of circumstances which brought about the Alberta Wheat Pool's formation. Nevertheless, they should realize that the Wheat Pool has been a tower of strength to Alberta agriculture.

Alberta farmers have, over the years, paid for many an elevator system. But Alberta Pool Elevators is the only one owned by Alberta farmers today.

Besides providing grain producers with exceptional service and protection, Alberta Pool Elevators has, over the years, paid patronage dividends and redeemed reserves as follows:

Patronage dividends paid in cash	$ 3,725,000
Patronage dividends paid in reserves	3,028,000
	$ 6,753,000
Purchases of reserves from members	$ 4,450,000

This record shows what can be done through co-operative effort. This year deliver your grain to —
